HOW IT WORKS:

Held in Caldwell's Beloit, WI, training center, the complete 3-day course makes learning easy! Attendees are responsible for all transportation to and from the facility ... and Caldwell takes care of the rest. We provide three nights of hotel, nine meals, training materials, a certificate of completion, social media coverage if desired, and some company merch.

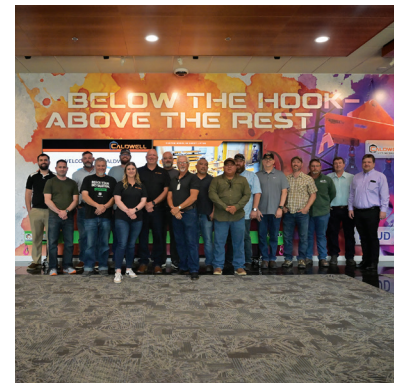

Here's a typical agenda:

Day 1: Arrive at Beloit mid-day and check in to hotel. Attend a group dinner at a local restaurant.

Day 2: Head to the Caldwell training facility for a full day of learning. First up, an overview of the Caldwell product families including interactive product demonstrations. Next up, we will cover a short session discussing the RUD lifting points. The day will conclude diving into the Renfro lifting clamps.

Day 3: Kick-off the day with an immersive look at Caldwell's manufacturing and warehousing facilities in Rockford, IL. Then, back to the training center to conclude the Renfro presentation and a hands-on session focused on inspection and maintenance, wrapping up by 3:30 p.m. to allow for evening travel or an optional overnight stay in Beloit. Breakfast and lunch will be served on-site both days with dinners hosted at local restaurants. Upon demonstrating proficiency, attendees will receive a certificate of course completion.

*Most attendees choose the full Caldwell/Renfro/RUD agenda, but training by specific brand is also possible. Contact Caldwell for details.
